State Patrol Participation

The Department of Commerce provides federal Byrne Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) funds to the Investigative Assistance Division of the Washington State Patrol to enhance the effectiveness and efficiency of the multi-jurisdictional task force program. Previous program evaluations conducted by Commerce researchers have proven the benefit of WSP's participation, specifically related to its ability to:

1. Provide trained supervisors and detectives to task forces,
2. Facilitate the exchange of intelligence between task forces,
3. Provide technical assistance and investigative coordination,
4. Assist in monitoring and assessing task force performance; and to
5. Coordinate related training for task force personnel.

Since the inception of the task forces, WSP has provided supervisors to 11 task forces, and investigators to 16. Like the task forces, WSP received successive yearly reductions in JAG funding, which substantially reduced its ability to participate directly. WSP did not receive an enhancement of general funds in 2006 and, as a result, there are now far fewer WSP personnel assigned to task forces. WSP supervisors are currently assigned to only 6 of the 20.

Program	In 2006, in response to requests from law enforcement to rescue this valuable program.
Our Other Programs	Governor Christine Gregoire and Attorney General Rob McKenna worked with the state legislature to acquire an appropriation of $1,658,000 from the general fund, which when combined with federal funds, effectively restored funding to the task forces to 2004 levels beginning July 1, 2006.
Governor's Council on Substance Abuse	Edward Byrne
Justice Assistance Grant	New York City Police Officer Edward Byrne (1966-1988) was a rookie officer who was killed in the line of duty on February 26, 1988. Byrne was shot several times in the head and died instantly as he sat in his police car while on assignment protecting a drug case witness at 107th Avenue and Inwood Street in South Jamaica, Queens. The cold-blooded killing, which was apparently a plot to intimidate witnesses from testifying against drug dealers, shocked the consciousness of the city. A year after the murder, four men were convicted and sentenced to the maximum sentences of 25 years to life for the crime. Byrne was 22, single, and living in Massapequa, Long Island, at the time he was murdered. He had joined the police force the previous July, and worked at the 103rd Precinct in Jamaica, Queens.
